4.1. Methodological overview

The methodology followed in this course is oriented towards the achievement of the learning objectives. In the learning process, different teaching methodologies will be used depending on whether the modality of face-to-face or distance learning is used. The indicated teaching methodologies allow the involvement of the student in their learning process and allow the teachers to solve the problems and doubts that may arise.

The teaching methodologies for the face-to-face students are the following:

1. Theory and practice sessions. The presentation of contents by the teacher, including practical exercises on the blackboard.
2. Workshop. Supervised session where students work individually or in groups and receive assistance and guidance when necessary.
3. Problem-based learning. Educational approach oriented to learning and teaching in which the students solve real problems in small groups and under the supervision of a tutor.

The teaching methodologies for distance students are the following:

1. The study materials prepared by the faculty, which will consist of at least one didactic guide for the preparation of the theoretical contents, the elaboration of the continuous assessment tests, the offer of training activities on the Moodle platform and evaluation systems.
2. Workshop. Supervised session where students work individually or in groups and receive assistance and guidance when necessary.
3. Problem-based learning. Educational approach oriented to learning and teaching in which the students solve real problems in small groups and under the supervision of a tutor.
