5.1.General methodological presentation

"Prácticas externas" is an especial course through which the Degree students work as trainees at local companies and institutions. The work placement is organised in order to provide the students with a good preparation for a real enterprise environment. So the students are given the opportunity to apply the knowledges acquired at the classroom, to improve their abilities for team work and to acquire a valuable experience wich could led to better job oportunities in future.

A system of double-tutor is established, since the trainee has the support of an academic tutor in the Geography Department and another tutor within the firm/institution of the placement.
