5.1.Methodological overview

The subject has a theoretical and practical part. The teaching methodology combines, on the one hand, a class attendance system (theoretical and practical teaching based on the model cases, exhibition and debate by the students) and, on the other, the system of non-presential and autonomous student work that takes place outside of the classroom (personal study at home, in the library, etc.). Also the subject is based on an intense reading (manual, notes and regulations legal indicated by the teacher) and constant reflection of the students, especially during the resolution of practical cases.

5.2.Learning tasks

TEACHING activities:-

- Theoretical classes.
- Practical sessions.
- Study of real cases and rulings.
- Discussions in class.
- Analysis of jurisprudence and legislation
- Guided visits to public and private institutions.
