4.1.Methodological overview

Based on student's presence at school to establish, through orientation, a link between the theory studied and practice.

It is based on the presence of the student in the school with the objective of observing, acting and reflecting about what it has been observed with the help of the teacher of the subject and the teacher tutor, establishing a link between the theory studied in the first year subjects and practice professional. As a result, it is expected that the student acquires skills that allow him to better integrate the theoretical knowledge taught in the degree and, on the other hand, an experiential knowledge of great use for his future incorporation into the profession of teacher.
